INDUSTRY RECALL: BrightFarms Recalls Various Salad Products due to Possible Salmonella Contamination

Midwest Foods is NOT involved in this recall.

July 16th, 2021

Bright Farms is recalling various 3-, 4-, and 8-oz clamshells with leafy greens because the product may be contaminated with Salmonella. One of the products, Crunch Salad, has been implicated in a Salmonella outbreak in Wisconsin and Illinois. The recalled product was distributed in WI, IL, IN, and IA and sold at various retail outlets. For more information, see the recall alert below.

Distribution:

[Multi-State]: sold in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana

The affected BrightFarms-branded products were sold by the following retailers:

Illinois: Mariano’s Fresh Markets, Walmart (select stores), Strack Van Till, Sullivan’s Foods, Caputo’s, Jewel-Osco

Wisconsin: Pick ‘n Save, Metro Market, Copps, Tadych’s, Walmart (select stores)

Iowa: Walmart (select stores)

Indiana: Strack Van Till

Additional retailers may be affected.

Recommendation

Consumers, restaurants, and retailers should not eat, sell, or serve BrightFarms Sunny Crunch Salad produced in Rochelle, IL. Sunny Crunch salads are packaged in a plastic clamshell container labeled as “fresh from Rochelle, IL.” According to the firm, these products were distributed in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Indiana. Consumers, restaurants, retailers, and distributors should check their refrigerators and throw away any of the products identified above. If you purchased or used these products, you should use extra vigilance in cleaning and sanitizing any surfaces that may have come in contact with the product, to reduce the risk of cross contamination. FDA recommends that anyone who has symptoms of salmonellosis contact their healthcare provider.
